This project will improve the educational quality of two-year college (2YC) chemistry education by increasing the connection of the nation’s 2YC chemistry faculty to the national community of chemical educators, particularly those who develop and lead efforts to improve the methods used in foundational chemistry courses. Three symposia will be hosted featuring NSF Catalyzed Innovations in the Two-Year College Chemistry Curriculum at three National Meetings of the American Chemical Society (ACS) in 2009 and 2010 and two participatory workshops at the Biennial Conference in Chemical Education Meetings in the summers of 2008 and 2010.

Upon its conclusion, this project is expected to have aided the dissemination of NSF projects, raised the awareness of NSF funding opportunities, increased the number of proposals submitted by 2YC’s or having co-Principal Investigators (PIs) from 2YC’s, catalyzed the formation of a scholarly community of two-year college chemists and created collaborations and partnerships among two and four-year chemistry faculty.
