Reference List
This list provides the information necessary to identify and retrieve each source used in a research paper. Examples of how to cite selected resources are listed below. If a source is not listed, or if you need further assistance, consult the Reference Librarian; or the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association - Reference BF76.7 P83 2010 (pages 180-215 for Reference List).

Basic Rules

- Spacing: All APA citations should be double spaced.

- Order: Entries should be arranged in alphabetical order by authors’ last names. Sources without authors are arranged alphabetically by title within the list.

- Authors: Invert all author’s names and use initials instead of first and middle names. Use an ampersand (&) instead of the word "and" when listing multiple authors of a single work. For works with more than six authors, use “et al.” after the sixth author’s name.

- Titles: Capitalize only the first word of a title or subtitle, and any proper names that are part of a title EXCEPT for journal titles. Capitalize all major words in journal titles. Use italics in your titles.

- Date: Place the date of publication in parentheses immediately after the last author’s name.

- Pagination: Use abbreviation “p.” (or “pp.” for plural) before page numbers of newspaper articles and works in anthologies but do not use it before page numbers of articles appearing in magazines and scholarly journals.

- Indentation: The first line of the entry is flush with the left margin, and all subsequent lines are indented (5 to 7 spaces) to form a "hanging indent".

- Internet Address: A stable Internet address should be included and should direct the reader as close as possible to the actual work. If the work has a digital object identifier (DOI), use this. If there is no DOI use a stable URL. If the URL is not stable, as is often the case with online newspapers and some subscription-based databases, use the home page of the site you retrieved the work from.

Article from a Database

When referencing material obtained from an online database (such as a database in the library), provide appropriate print citation information (formatted just like a "normal" print citation would be for that type of work). This will allow people to retrieve the print version if they do not have access to the database from which you retrieved the article. For articles that are easily located, do not provide database information. If the article is difficult to locate, then you can provide database information. Only use retrieval dates if the source could change, such as Wikis.

Online Scholarly Journal Article

Since online materials can potentially change URL’s, APA recommends providing a Digital Object Identifier (DOI), when it is available, as opposed to the URL. DOI’s are an attempt to provide stable, long-lasting links for online articles. They are unique to their documents and consist of a long alphanumeric code. Many—but not all—publishers will provide an article's DOI on the first page of the document.

If the article appears as a printed version as well, the URL is not required. Use "Electronic version" in brackets after the article's title.
