Gonfalon Flags

A gonfalon is a medieval banner originally used by 11th and 12th century Italian city-states. Later, gonfalons were adopted by Italian guilds, corporations and sub-districts. Gonfalons often include badges or coat of arms. Gonfalons are used in ceremonies at the University of Chicago, Rowan University, Rutgers University, Princeton University, the University of Toronto, the University of St. Thomas, and now, Southwestern College.

The gonfalons displayed today represent each of the college's six schools and the three Higher Education Centers.

Academic Costume

Traditions of academic costume began in medieval Europe. When students in the universities of Paris, Bologna, Oxford and Cambridge began to organize into guilds, they developed distinctive costumes for bachelors (apprentices), masters (teachers) and doctors (teachers who had completed postgraduate study).

American use has been standardized by an intercollegiate code, which takes the Oxford costume as a starting point. The bachelor's gown has long, pointed sleeves, and the master's gown oblong sleeves, open at the wrist. Both are untrimmed. The doctor's gown has round, open sleeves, with three bars of velvet and velvet facing. The gown is normally black but some institutions have adopted colored gowns.

The academic hood also found its beginnings in the unheated medieval classrooms of England. Its original purpose was as a head covering to provide warmth before it was replaced by the mortarboard. The hood is now worn around the neck and down the back and indicates both the degree held and the institution from which it was granted. All hoods are black and lined in satin with the color(s) of the institution that conferred the wearer's degree. The color of the velvet trimming on the hood represents the field in which the degree was granted. The style of the hood varies with the degree level.

2021 HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENT

Salvador Barajas

Almost 50 years ago, in 1974, Salvador Barajas and a group of muralists changed the fabric of Chicano Park forever. Before Chicano Park was a tourist attraction for people all over the world, it was an underfunded community park with gray pillars ready to be taken over by the local and state governments.

“There was nothing here,” Barajas said on a cloudy morning in Chicano Park under the Coronado Bridge. “At that time, this community was being decimated and families were being driven out of their homes. We wanted to paint messages on these pillars to show how upset we were and we wanted to paint something that celebrated our culture. This is one of the oldest Mexican and Chicano communities in California.”

Barajas’ first brush strokes were on “Historical Mural,” which celebrates Chicano and Latino heroes and icons. Since then, Barajas has painted three murals in Chicano Park and has spent more than 50 years fighting for their historical status and being a representative for one of the most important Chicano communities in the country. In 2012, Barajas was part of the team that helped restore the “Historical Mural” on 2024 Logan Ave.

Barajas is one of the most represented artists in Chicano Park and at 77 years old, he is making plans on his next mural in the park, commissioned by Gente Unida, a human rights border coalition.

Barajas, who was born in Nio, Sinaloa and grew up in Tijuana, moved to San Diego in 1961 and attended a San Diego evening school to learn English. After four years in the Air Force, Barajas used his G.I. benefits to enroll at Los Angeles Trade Technical College, later earning a degree in advertising design.

Being a product of the community college system, Barajas says he believes in the opportunities community colleges offer to students, especially minority students. He said it is a true honor to receive an honorary degree from Southwestern College because of his strong belief in education and the power it has to change lives.

“I think community colleges are one of the greatest things to happen to minorities,” said Barajas. “Community colleges are crucial to educating and providing job training. You can get a well-paying and high-demand job as soon as you graduate.”

Barajas is a living Chicano Park history book and 10 years ago he worked to put his knowledge on paper when he helped design the “Chicano Park Mural Restoration Technical Manual,” a manual that is part history book and part technical care instructions for the murals.

“The history of this park and this community is an incredible history,” Barajas said. “These murals and Chicano Park are a constant reminder of the power of this community and that this community will never go away.”

For his meritorious contributions to human relations and fine arts, the Southwestern College Governing Board grants Salvador Barajas a Southwestern College honorary degree.
